WHY waste your time puttering round these dirty streets when you can go straignt on the cars to Crawford's corner or to the twelve-foot crossing right in front of their main entrance, laid there by themselves for your convenience? FARMERS TOO BUSY TO DRINK. SYSTEM ALREADY IN EFFECT.

Is Responsible for the Presence of "Joints" and Bad Liquor.

William Alien White, of Emperia, Kas., author of "The Real Issue" and "The Court of Boyville," was the guest of friends in St. Louis yesterday. He is returning to his home after a week's absence on business in Chicago and Indianapolis. While in the latter place, he visited James Whitcomb Riley. Mr. White, as the writer of an editorial much copied in McKinley's first presidential campaign, sought to show "What's the Matter With Kansas?" He spoke from a political point of view. Since the advent of Mrs. Nation, the old question has come up again in another form. The other day at a dinner party given in hon-or of Mr. White, small hatchets were distributed as a reminder of the trials through which Kaneas is passing.

The probibition statute has a warm defender in Mr. White. In an interview yesterday he gave the present status of the terday he gave the present status of the law from his point of view.

"Kansas is a farmer State," he said, "and there is always a great deal of talk by people who live in the cities about the monotony of farm life. As a matter of fact, farm life is anything but monotonous. The man who comes down to the office in the morning on a street car at noon goes out and throws his leg over a stool at the lunch counter, goes back to the office in lunch counter, goes back to the office in the afternoon and goes home at night and to a show once a week hasn't much call to weep with sympathy over the hard, monotonous life of the farmer, who has something going on all the time. Why Men Take to Drink.

"And it is on account of the desire to relieve the monotony of existence that the average man takes drink. He doesn't drink because he likes the taste of whisky or of wine or of beer. The human palate is so arranged that it naturally rejects anything but even a small per cent of alcohol. What a man takes whisky for is its effect. It gives him a touch of 'high life.' Because the farmer has more to interest him, more to divert him and amuse him than the dweller in the city, it is less difficult to enforce a prohibitory liquor law in a farming State than in a great city with its dull, uninteresting factories, its tread-mills of offices and its thousands of square miles of hard, monotonous pavements and sidewalks.

"Therefore, the prohititory law of Kansas is in the main well enforced, take the State over. In many towns—maybe fifty towns—the law is not enofrced at all, but these towns contain only a fractional percent of the population. It is a reasonably conservative statement that seven persons out of ten in the State of Kansas do not see a saloon or see liquor used as a beverage while they are at home and following their usual vocations once in two years.

"There are, of course, "joints" which are not at all synonymous with the saloons in every central population of more than 4,000 people. But these "joints" are low dives. They are conducted in box stalls of livery stables, up dark alleys, in abandoned outbuildings and amid such environments that no reputable man or self-respecting young man can afford to be seen frequenting them.

COMMISSIONER HELD WILLIAMS

Charged With Offering Information About World's Fair Site. W. L. Williams, who was arrested by the Federal authorities a week ago on a charge of using the mails to defraud in a scheme in which he was alleged to have claimed to know the exact site upon which the World's Fair is to be located, was arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner James R. Gray. Williams admitted that he had inserted the advertisement and rented the lock-box in the post office. He contended, however, that this in itself did not constitute a violation of the postal laws.

The evidence showed that a letter containing ten 2-cent stamps, for which Williams in the advertisement offened to impart his information, was placed in the lock-box by Post Office Inspector Sullivan, and that the letter was removed by some one who possessed a key to the box. It was further shown that Williams had opened the box on that day. Commissioner Gray held that the chain of circumstances connecting Williams with the letter which was taken from the box was strong enough to warrant holding him.

He was held in 150 bond, pending action of the May term of the Federal Grand Jury. in which he was alleged to have claimed to

None of the girls is totally blind, but Miss Haine is the only one who can see well enough to go on the street alone. She was escorting Mizses Walker and Hendricks to a dentist's office in Olive street. Miss Haine managed to pull her companions from in front of the eastbound car, but in doing so led them immediately in given front of a westbound car. Negotiations to this end have been pending for several weeks. The consideration for which the transfer was made is kept secret, 35 being the amount mentioned in the deed.

The property sold to the Continental Company is the four-story factory at Park and Lawrence avenues, with its accompanying outbuildings. The main building has dimensions of about 56x16i feet and contains about 9,016 square feet of floor space, exclusive of the three one-story storage buildings.

Before its sale the factory and furnishings were valued in the neighborhood of $90,000, and it is presumed that some such price was paid therefor. Mr. R. B. Duia, managing director for the Continental Company in this city, stated that it is the intention of the company to operate the plant to its full capacity.

"We will continue the business under its old management," he said, "Mr. James Wellman acting as manager and Harvey Wellman, his son, acting as superintendent. We will employ the same force of employes and probably will increase it somewhat. The same brands of tobacco will be turned out as when the Wellman-Dwire Company was in control."
